Halloween Run

So it is Monday night and I just received a text from Pleasure Chest asking for my scribe. Which I totally forgot about. Why did I volunteer to write, now I need to try to remember.....

Mr. Mike's was the start, with glasses of big horny antler beer I think. It was a costume run. I knew this because Curb Crawler the rodeo clown was the 1st person I saw. Chips and Drippy were there as well with their disturbing contact lenses. Some creepy shit. Pucker was there as well. I thought she was Betty or Wilma (bright hair and a dinosaur) but apparently she was from Jurassic World. My references are a little out-of-date. And our running hare, Broken Boner, was getting refreshed after setting trail for several hours. We could be assured a long long long (you get the picture) run. I seem to recall Pole Her and Dirty Pole (a losing hockey fighter) were there as well.

The run started in Oriole Park so I had this sinking feeling the dreaded 100 stairs of Maskepetoon were in our future. Luckily, this turned out to be wrong. There were a lot of hashers though, and a lot of great costumes. Was it Wet Denim and Cum See that forgot theirs and had to be supplied with spares? Broken Boner put on a beard and became a redneck. Not sure the beard was necessary. The walking hare (Caulk Belly) and Swings were there but Nipple Biter was noticeably absent.

I thought I had a witch costume on, but again my references were out-of-date as apparently I was an Instructor from Harry Potter. Sir Nookey came dressed as an old man. It was a real stretch for him but I think he pulled off. Somebody had a gorilla mask and by process of elimination I figured it must have been Wee Little Bladder.

G-Spot and Aneeda were devils. And the long absent Ambisexstress was an emoticon (that one I think I knew!). Pleasure Chest was in costume as well and it was not a flapper dress (that was Saturday) so it must have been as a jester. A real stretch for her as well? And Cum Honour was a viking which he used again on Saturday. Should he be punished? Same with our frequent zombie, Sir Cums.

The run started west towards the stairs and down we went. But instead of up we went cross country to the highway 2 ditch. Where there was no trail! Feeble excuses of construction were made and we carried on north past gravel trucks and the tractor that may have erased our trail. After going 5 or 10 km down the ditch we found trail again and went into Oriole Park. Where a check back led to a “W” walking arrow that us runners decided to follow. A short haul from there and we were in a backyard by a fire that had been carefully tended by Nookey and Ryan. Meat, cheezies, beer and chocolate were in abundance and we were happy. Much good conversation occurred (more memories – Was Slippery When Wet dressed as Batman?).

On In from there and a circle where some mystery substance was poured into glasses, much to the chagrin of all who were punished. Caulk Belly several times and must have been some others. Nookey made 17 announcements, something about his birthday and a bunch of other stuff that was probably really important.

On to Taphouse North, where we enjoyed more beer, food and company. We were lucky to find a seat as it was horribly crowded and noisy (sarcasm...). If I forgot anybody, I apologize and use being over 50 as an excuse ☺. It was a great night with good fun had by all.
