Too many errands after work, hence being late for the start and "volunteering" for Deer Droppings.

A lovely run starting at the Clearview Community Centre

After a roll in the grass with his lovely ladies, Wee Little Bladder lost 2 of the walkers.

The walkers were not very skilled at hiding in the grass to scare the runners.

Wet Denim was punished for reaching her goal and let out a little squeal when the vibrator (fitbit) buzzed.

It seems that Pucker Sucker remembers to look both ways at a crosswalk, but forgets to stop for a car that almost hits her.

Happy birthday song to Pucker.

Sir Cums A Lot gets asshole punishment for helping (not) Chips A Whore carry back the hash hold cooler, which suddenly got a lot heavier when someone pushed down from behind.

Big thanks to Sir Cums & Hymen Trouble for what I heard was a great Halloween party. A gift set of skulls (not balls) glasses were presented.

Chips may look like a big tough guy, but actually squeals like a girl when scared.

Whore Slayer was looking a little parched, so was called into the circle for a refreshment.

Thanks to my roving reporter Pleasure Chest, here is what happened with the runners...7 of us started off, I was hoping it would be a lucky 7 and it was. The runners found every false trail we had laid at the beginning so we got to go back and forth and hang around the walkers for a bit.

We then headed off to 30th street where the freaking wind was sooooooo cold. We were happy to get to Safety City and head back into a little more sheltered area. That's where we lost Pucker. When we found her again she had joined the walkers. I've only been hashing for 4 years but I can't remember Pucker ever joining the walkers!

So after we left the walkers for the second time we came across last Saturday's run markings. That had the runners a bit confused and I had to remind them that trail was set with red flour, not white.

Off we went again. More false trails and by then they were all suspicious of the trail leading towards the cemetery so Whore Slayer sacrificed himself and went all the way down to find the check back.

We then started heading towards Ross St and met the walkers for the 3rd time. Short time later we got to the HH to find the fire already started by Little Oral Annie and Drippy.

The On On at Chillabongs was nice and Pole Her Express joined us as well as Nail Me & Flying Low.
