Hare(s): Crash Test Rummy & Slippery when Wet

Location: West Park Skate Shack

Prelube: Troubled Monk

On On: East 40

Scribe: Whore Sleigher

We all gathered at the skate shack in Westpark, at roughly 7:00 ish. I was late because I thought I knew where it was, but I was wrong. I did finally make it at 10 minutes after 7:00, and I wasn't even the last one to get there. It was a pretty good turnout, I think 11 of us. We all got handwarmers from Crash, which I must say was a nice touch because it was flippen cold.

Anywhoo, we circled up, Crash Test explaining the markings and such, unfortunately the marshmallows in the hot chocolate mix plugged up the hash marker and we had to imagine the on ons and the arrow.

We split from the walkers, Deep Throat, Slippery and Drippy and headed in some direction with our strict but fair minded Hare calling the shots. The trails were more traily than I expected as I did not know Westpark had as much green space. It was a pleasant surprise. Was a bit of a bitch in the deeper snow though, not easy going at all. I saw a couple of big deer that no one else saw, and then we also ran into a big bunch of deer down by the row housing at the bottom of Westpark hill.

We had to say so long to Wet Spot and Cum Honour at this point due to cold feet, or was it youthful love? Either way you were missed on the remainder of the run, and you made the right choice either way.

We finally met up with the walkers at the RG. Things got a bit spicy when the fireball and the strawberry liquor came out. Nice touch to a nippy night. I don't usually say this but beer is not always the best choice. We had some artists in the group, and Moby made a snow angel. The joy that that will bring to all passers by on the trail, nice touch Mobes.

From the RG we were offered the option of a shortcut with the walkers, but we all kept running because we finish what we start, us hashers, except if it's hard sometimes we don't, it all depends really.

We made it out of the woods and into a church parking lot to celebrate our victory against gender neutral parent nature and partake in the beverage that drove our quest. Our cheerful ditties could be heard for miles around, even the AA meeting in the church basement joined in with a drink it down down down down down.

Our revelry was near an end when the RCMP showed up. Luckily, the fair ladies of the hash charmed the angry law enforcer and no doubt saved us all a night in the drunk tank. Thank you Ladies.

We made it back to the skate shack for more refreshments and punishments for misdeeds. There were many. I think some other stuff happened, but after two beer I kinda black out so that's the end.

Oh and we went to east 40th for the On On. It was also great.
